

Autism Hub

making a difference

Staying connected

Learning Spaces

Consider setting up learning spaces in the house where family members gather such as the lounge room or dining room

Keep in contact

Encourage your child to keep in contact with their teacher/s – this might need a parent to facilitate and maintain

Connect with peers

Where possible set up contact with peers through email, using video technology, speaking on the phone or specific school/classroom blogs

Share updates

Share and read aloud newsletters, emails or updates that you get from family, the school or other community groups and connections

Keep communicating

Talk to the whole family about what is happening. Talk about other times that were tricky and worrying and think of the things that helped

Record activities to share

Video activities, special interest talks, interviews with family members and share with your networks

Activities online

Organise to play with family and friends through online games or read a book over the phone or using video-call.

Activities around the home

Do activities together such as cooking, watching TV, jigsaw puzzles, board games, gardening and playing with pets

